

A "free press" requires a multitude of voices, viewpoints and opinions. With less than a dozen corporations controlling 90% of the communications outlets in our nation today, we are close to becoming a thought-controlled nation. This may seem great to conservatives right now, but the pendulum will swing -- it always does -- and the shoe will be on the other foot.